British SEAMAN's
LETTER.

Greeting you all most heartily,

OUT of a steady, unbiass'd, generous, and sincere Love of my Country, I presume, at this Juncture, whilst there are still amongst us some horrid Remains

Remains of a late base, infamous, and treasonable Rebellion, which, as it was, at first, begun, and carry'd on, by bloody minded Papists, and Jacobites, at Home, spirited on, and supported by Romish Votaries, Slaves and Idolaters from Abroad, and is yet nurs'd and kept alive, upon the hopes of the like Springs, and Assistance for the future, to offer to your mature, deliberate Judgments, my honest, and worthy Protestant Countrymen, the following barefac'd, open-hearted Truths, and just Observations.

You can't but hear the daily Clamours, and villainous Suggestions of the Popish Traiterous Faction against the best of Kings, and most deserving Parliaments, and Ministry ; such, as at one and the same time, this Nation was hardly ever bless'd withal ; and term term His tender, and unprecedented Clemency, and Mercy, to the most evil, obnoxious, sanguinary Wretches that ever existed ; Monsters, taken in open Arms, in a concerted, grand Association, and Rebellion ; a Massacre, a delighting in Blood. Oh base, and ungrateful !

Was not the Design of these unnatural Rebels in favour of a most notorious Impostor, and Popish Pretender to the Crown, Dignity, and Government of the British Realms, a servile Slave to Rome and France? And in order to Depose, and Murder our most sacred Sovereign, and Royal Family? Root up, and totally to Extirpate our most Holy Church, the Darlings of Heaven, with all the worthy Members of the same, in manifest Violation of the many wholesome Acts of Parli-

Parliament subsisting ? And what is extreamly corrupt, and most detestably odious, hardly to be believ'd, but alas, too true ; that some Professors of, and Pretenders to this sacred, and National Establishment, belonging to Rochester, Holbourn, Oxford, Tyburn, Newgate, the Tower, the Fleet and Sea ; not that of which, I thank God, I am an honest Member, have principally, chiefly, and diligently stirr'd up, fomented, aided, countenanc'd, and abett'd these damnable, curs'd Insurrections, and Rebellion with all their dire, and dreadful Consequences ?

Was not the Design of these Traytors to undermine, and blow up the best constituted Government both in Church, and State, on Earth, that ever was fram'd by God and Man ?

Was

Was not the Design to unravel the whole Texture of our Laws, sacred and political? To sink, and emerge our Liberties and Properties? Divest us of our Estates? Give up our Trade to foreign Papists? Reduce us to Want and Beggary? Force our Wives and Daughters? Massacre the Major Part, and leave the Remainder to the whole Enjoyment of Rags, and Wooden Shoes? All submitting to the infernal Rage of French Dragoons?

Sure, my brave Countrymen, you can't, but with the utmost Horror, and Dread, look back, and read the greatest, and most valuable Historians of the last Century, there you'll find above Two Hundred Thousand Protestants, without Distinction of Age, Sex, or Dignity, murder'd in cool Blood, by Villains of the same Stamp, same Principles, same Pretences with these late horrid Rebels ; and for no other Reason, but because they were so ; even such as liv'd in Obedience to the Laws of the several Countries, where they resided, but in Point of Conscience, and for the Salvation of their Souls, neither cou'd, nor wou'd submit to Popery, Tyranny, Idolatry, and Superstition, Companions always inseparable ; witness the bloody, barbarous and most flagitious Massacres of Ireland, Paris, the Palatinate, and the Hereditary Dominions of the Empire, with many others, not to mention the Blessed Martyrs in the Reign of the Popish Queen Mary here at Home ; the Thoughts of which only, must ever plunge the honest well-meaning Subject into the deepest Melancholy ; and to find that there shou'd be now amongst us base Men, endeavourdeavouring to bring upon us the like Woes, Cruelties, and Miseries, can't, I hope, but fire you with the warmest Resentments.

I must beg leave to observe to you, that Rewards and Punishments are the best and surest Support of the Body Politick ; and, as it has been the fix'd Opinions of the greatest Divines and Statesmen; that Men may be guilty of such Crimes in this Life, as ought not to be forgiven here ; I must plainly tell you, that all concern'd in the late Rebellion, against the present Legislature, are the highest Criminals of that kind ; the Forgiveness of Injuries, personally transacted between Man and Man, is trivial, of a quite different and inferior Nature, no ways relative to the Case of these unnatural, rebellious ous Delinquents; nay, I will venture to affirm the Maxim is justifiable, and good in many private Cases, such as in Sodomy, or where a brutal Father shall force, and enjoy the Body of his own natural Children, &c. in which, I think, no good Man, and Christian, can differ from me. And tho' these are hideous and shocking Sins, but what are they, when you compare them to this Rebellion? Every Musket was pointed at, and according to the known Tendency and Construction of the Law, with an intent to murder the blessed King, and glorious Family, and thereby destroy the State. Can any atrocious Papist, or Jacobite, be so corrupt, so hardened, carry such a brazen Front, as even to insinuate, that the least Tenderness ought to be shown the Criminals, I have fairly describ'd; when sure no Man, tho' never so Vitiouſ, dare openly, at least, aſſert, that the minutest Indulgence ſhou'd be ſhown to Delinquents, in the private Caſes abovemention'd.

I must also obſerve to you, That the vulgar Notion of Mercy is falſe and erroneous ; it is in Compassion to the Innocent, that Laws are made to puniſh the Noſcent ; and it is the highest Goodneſs and Mercy to the upright, when the Almighty is pleas'd ſo to deſtroy the Wicked, that no more juſt Men may fall through the Malice of their Hearts, and the Poiſon of their Lips. King James the First, when apply'd too, to pardon a Murderer, was pleas'd to make Anſwer, " That now the Guilt lay where it ought ; but ſhou'd he pardon him, and he repeat the Crime, it was his " firm

“ firm Opinion, that the Guilt then “ wou’d lie at his Door ”. For a Man to say, that he is sorry such Traytors legally convicted are to die, is highly Absurd and Ridiculous ; he may, with equal Folly, say, that he is much concern’d, that ever wholesome Laws were enacted, than which, nothing wou’d be more stupid. This does not debar every good Man from showing a decent Contrition, that his Fellow-Creature has merited the Penalty of those necessary good Institutions ; political Forgiveness is in the Sovereign. But then suppose after an Amnesty, the present Traytors shou’d rebel again, at whose Door must the Unhappiness be ?! Indeed, it’s true, that the Ignorant and Deluded can’t operate, when their Leaders and Se-ducers are no more, than the Body can act without the Head ; and for my my part, I have good Nature enough to Compound for that, and no less, were it in my Power. These most execrable Miscreants, I hope, can't imagine in Reality, but some reasonable Atonement shou'd be made for Crimes of so deep a Die ; some Satisfaction for the Blood of those gallant, brave Fellows, that at Dunblain and Preston, fell in the glorious Cause of God, their King, and Country, by the Hands of these Rebels ; let them but consult the Widows and Fatherless, the Mothers and Fathers having lost their Sons, that they barbarously have occasion'd ; let them compose their several Juries. Must an injur'd Prince, and People, have no Redress for the vast Sums expended, the Decay of Trade, and Confusion, for a while, it introduc'd ? Can any Body suppose, that out of a Body of about about Twenty Thousand, such Criminals, a few Calves-Heads, to the Northward; and a brace of Cods-Heads, to the Southward, with the Irish Head upon Temple-Bar, of Morrogan O Sullivan, alias Captain Silver, are a sufficient Amends? Idle and preposterous! A Man may as rationally propose to satisfy the Nation's Debts, consisting of so many Millions Sterling, with a Bill of that Dog's, the Pretender's, endors'd by General Mar.

But before I leave you, pardon me, if I put you in Mind of an old English Proverb, viz. When the Fox preaches, beware the Goose. And I beg you to observe, how under the Pretence of Liberty and Property, as the Papists murder Protestants through religious Zeal, all the Jacobites, and disaffected Desperado's are railing, and ininveighing against our Divine Legislature, upon the Introduction of a Bill, for a pro tempore Suspension of the Triennial Act. And take this as an unerring Standard with you, that whenever you find those Traytors, and their Abettors, convuls'd and dull, you have just Reason to be Gay and Chearful ; and whenever they rejoice, some Mischief is at Hand to all good Men.

The very Men I have been speaking of, even those, that, with all their Might, oppos'd this Triennial Act, when first brought into the House in the Reign of that Glorious Monarch King William, well knowing it wou'd, effectually prevent the Return of King James, and Popery, &c, and mutatis mutandis, those same sort of Gentry oppose now, as strenuously the Suspension of it, because it will strengthen our Alliances ; our Confederates will put an entire Confidence, and Trust in us ; our Trade will flourish ; all Hopes of the Pretender, and his Adherents will totally abate ; the Minds of the People be compos'd, and sett'd ; the Gentlemen, and Commonalty greatly eas'd from Expence, and Hurry ; much Confusion, and Tu-mulcts obstructed, with many other Advantages. But what may not a People reasonably expect from so Glorious a Monarch ? So wise, and honest a Ministry ? And from Two such unparalleld Houses of Parliament ? I cou'd infinitely enlarge on this Occasion, and strictly keep within the bounds of Truth, but having already exceeded the usual length of a Letter, I can only assure you, that no Man living, loves, and honours the King,

King, the Church of England, as by Law establish'd, and my Country, with more Zeal and Sincerity then,

Dear Countrymen,

Yours at all Commands,
